

What ever happened to the bill of rights in the country? Who is the National Association of Broadcasters to say what can and cannot be broadcast on satellite radio? If I feel XM Satellite Radio deliveres superior programming and I am willing to pay for their service, what's wrong with that? And what makes the NAB feel they can bully XM? If they don't like what XM brocasts why don't they compete instead of petitioning the FCC to impose their will on XM? I subscribed to XM because I was tired of commercial radio's endless ads and foul-mouthed shock jocks. I depend on XM's traffic and weather reports. Its always there when I need it without having to listen to five minutes of ads and three or four songs I have heard a hundred times before they get to the traffic report. I would like to urge the FCC to reject NAB's petition 04-160 and to support XM Radio and their ability to deliver quality programming. This is the 21st century. The NAB needs to get with the times or be left behind.
